good talk

about

Good Talk is designed to spark conversation around the causes you care about. Whether it's climate change, mental health, equality, the state of the world or your place in it, this little game of questions can help you think about the bigger picture. It's also a great way to get to know someone. So grab a friend, a family member, or a group of total strangers – we hope it helps you to do a little more good ✨

brought to you by Humans For Good

instructions

1. Find a good human(s) and sit in a cosy circle

2. Start with level one, taking turns asking each other questions, and work your way to level three

3. Really listen to what each other has to say, and repeat level one

Warm-up questions to help you ease in to good conversations

The world would be a better place if _____

How should technology shape the future?

What opened your eyes to the climate crisis?

What's a cause that really hits home for you?

What's an act of kindness that someone's done for you? This can be big or small.

Who amongst your family or friends inspires you to do more good, and why?

What small action do you think can create big change?

What's your relationship with social media like?

How can we reduce our use of plastics in a world filled with them?

If you were dubbed president of the world tomorrow, what is the first thing you would do?

level two

Deeper questions you might not normally ask

What does hope in action look like – for the world, and for you?

What's one thing you could change about yourself that could help change the world?

What is the role of individuals in creating change, versus businesses and government?

How do you usually handle challenging mental health days?

How has your perspective on social and environmental issues evolved over time?

What kind of future do you hope for?

What role do you think today's youth plays in driving social change?

How can we break the stigma around mental health discussions in our communities?

Do you think social media helps or hurts the world?

What's one change you'd love to see in your country?

How do you stay optimistic about the future?

How do you think communities can better support individuals experiencing homelessness?

If you knew me,
you would know

_____

about me?

It's five years in the future – what kind of impact do you hope to have had?

What personal changes have you made, or hope to make, to reduce your carbon footprint?

level three big questions about the world and our place in it

Is it unethical to invest in fossil fuels, or are they still essential for maintaining our way of life?

Is it ethical to bring children into a world facing a climate crisis they'll inherit?

If you could change or create one policy to improve society, what would it be?

How can we make consent something that's truly understood by everyone, everywhere?

How can we reduce the harm that toxic masculinity has on the next generation of men?

How can we empower more women to step into leadership positions?

What can your country do to better acknowledge and support their Indigenous communities?

What role should men play in decisions about women's reproductive rights?

Should billionaires exist in a world where poverty exists?

Do you think it's possible to be apolitical in today's world?

thanks for playing Good Talk oh, and one last thing human:

Want to suggest a question?

Share it here

brought to you by Humans For Good

hfg

good talk